The Tin Ear...

A microphone, like the human ear, has certain reasonable limits to its proper functioning. For example, one can't raise a shout within two inches of his neighbor's ear and expect to be understood, and the same is true for a whisper at a distance of, say, five feet. What applies to the ear applies to the microphone and, of the two, the microphone is the more limited instrument. Of course, anyone whose business is broadcasting is expected to know this about a microphone. It is expected that he will respect its sensitivity—so far as dynamic range is concerned.

But what about those actions of the broadcaster that fall well within the technical limits of the microphone and all the rest of the broadcast paraphernalia? It is here that the analogy to the human ear seems no longer to apply, because broadcasters will pour into a microphone things which no one in his right mind would pour into his neighbor's ear and expect to remain at large. The microphone is approached with respect, but all too frequently the listener is regarded simply as the "target for tonight" and broadcasting becomes not a means of communication but of bombardment. Yet all broadcasters will agree that if radio is anything other than a freak of nature it is primarily a means of communication—for better or worse one might add. And if the programs which a station broadcasts are to be considered adequate they must be able to stand the ordinary aesthetic and ethical tests applicable to any communicative act.

Behind each of KPFA's programs, both the successes and the failures, is the person responsible for the program—out of whose interests and activities the program originated. This includes the more experimental literary broadcasts as well as the more cyberneticized of the public affairs discussions. And the deciding factor in putting any of the programs on the air is that, in the opinion of the individuals planning it, it is worth sharing, worth communicating. This in no way means that every program is good, but it does mean that a realistic judgment of a program can be reached simply because the broadcaster-listener situation is one involving intentional communication. It is when the broadcaster, self-anesthetized to the actual content of his acts, approaches the microphone merely to "do a job" that communication in any personal sense is made impossible.

NOTES

KPFA has been taking a more active role, of late, in the announcement and review of current events in the fields of music, art, theater and film. Alan Tory and Jane Rawson, Charles Susskind, Alan Rich, Pauline Kael, and Amy Meyer—each presents his own individual concern with the contemporary cultural scene. An important area, (often overlooked by the “FM crowd”, tin ears and high fidelity notwithstanding) is that of the cultural offerings of commercial AM radio and TV.
